Charges Russia Deliberately Rejected Parley

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge contended today Russia has "deliberately knocked the idea of the summit conference on the head" by rejecting the U.S. Arctic inspection plan.

Soviet Ambassador Arkady Sobolev retorted that the American proposal had a "purely propagandistic aim" and that Lodge rushed it to a vote in the U.N. Security Council Friday with "undue haste."

Lodge said neither Russia nor any other council member sought a delay before the council voted in favor of the American plan. Russia's veto killed passage of the proposal.

The council also voted down, 9-1, with Sweden abstaining, a Soviet demand to end alert missions by H-bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command and a suggestion that the question of safeguards against an Arctic surprise attack be referred to a summit conference.

Based On U.P. Dispatch

The United States had put into its resolution a Swedish amendment expressing the council's view that discussion on the Arctic plan "might serve as a useful basis for deliberations on the disarmament problem at a summit conference."

The veto was Russia's 83rd in the 13-year history of the Security Council. The debate that led to it was based largely on a dispatch in which United Press president Frank H. Bartholomew described how SAC planes took off with hydrogen bombs when unidentified objects were sighted by radar.

Lodge commented to newsmen on the Soviet veto:

"To me, personally speaking, it looks as if the Soviet Union has deliberately knocked the idea of a summit conference on the head."

Dulles Europe-Bound

Sobolev contended it was the United States and other Security Council members who damaged chances for a summit conference by rejecting Russia's demand for an end to the American H-bomber defense system.

Despite these pessimistic statements on summit chances, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to Copenhagen today to discuss summit preparations with foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

At the same time, the United States, Britain and France sent notes to Moscow today, agreeing reluctantly to confer singly with Russia on the summit preparations rather than jointly.

The notes rejected the Soviet suggestion that Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia be included in the negotiations to provide "parity" between the NATO powers and the Warsaw Pact nations.

Would Tap H Bomb to Get Electricity

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Columbia University professor proposed today a system for tapping H-bomb explosions directly for electrical power.

The professor, Dr. Jay Orear, told the American Physical Society that his H-bomb generator "would produce seven million kilowatts, or 12 per cent of the total United States electric power consumption."

Orear would use pyramidal H-bombs equal in power to only 10,000 tons of TNT. He would explode two of them an hour in a "chamber" constructed in a canyon. The blasts would change water to steam which would be piped to generators.

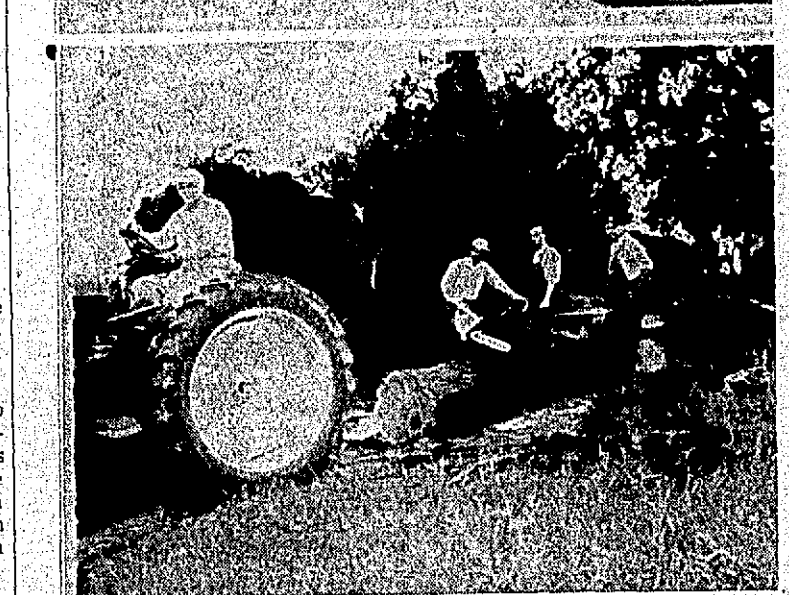

Orear's method would make unnecessary the tedious, difficult, and costly research now in progress on means of controlling H-bomb reactions for power. The reactions in his generator would be uncontrolled—that is, explosive—but contained.

The Atomic Energy Commission is doing work on the possibility of getting power by exploding nuclear charges underground, but Orear believes the underground method "may not be economical."

Weather

ARKANSAS — Scattered showers and thunderstorms Saturday and scattered showers Sunday.

Wind Damage at Shover Springs

A TORNADO struck Shover Springs about 4 a.m. Saturday causing considerable damage to barns at the home of Billy Schmitt and Cecil Allen. Luckily no houses were seriously damaged.

TOP photo shows the leveled barn at Cecil Allen's. A chicken setting in the barn was still on her nest, although the structure was completely destroyed.

Billion Asked of Military Construction

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Defense Department has asked Congress to approve $1,084,301,000 in military construction, $1,279,401,000 of it in the United States.

Chairman John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) announced this Senate Armed Services subcommittee will open hearings on the bill "at the earliest possible date," probably about May 15.

The proposal covered 193 installations in 45 states and the District of Columbia. It also listed new construction in Alaska, Hawaii, the Caribbean area, Europe, Africa, the Pacific islands, and Korea.

At the same time, the measure asked for authorization to build 57,724 family housing units for military personnel and dependents at bases in the United States and overseas.

A total of 125 million dollars was asked for projects at locations "not specified"—presumably "not specified"—presumably for security reasons.

A breakdown of the proposed appropriation:

Army: $347,028,000, of which $234,090,000 would be for continental U.S., $87,338,000 for overseas and $25,000,000 for unspecified locations.

Navy: $301,062,000, of which $258,173,000 would be for continental U.S., $17,889,000 for overseas and $25,000,000 for unspecified locations.

Air Force: $986,211,000, of which $789,601,000 would be for continental U.S., $174,670,000 for overseas and $22,000,000 for unspecified locations.

Defense Department, 50 million dollars for unspecified locations.

Bodcaw Plans Celebration on Saturday

BODCAW (UP)—This southwestern Nevada county town will climax months of hard work Saturday with two long needed conveniences:

1. Dial telephones.

2. A hard-surface highway. Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and the Arkansas Highway Department will join in a barbecue at the Bodcaw school Saturday. The occasion will be first operation of about 200 dial telephones. It will be the first telephone service for the town.

The dial system, which has the prefix TWInoaks, was installed at a cost of $80,000.

Tennessee Plans Hickman Memorial

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The University of Tennessee announced Friday plans to establish a Herman Hickman memorial scholarship.

Gen. Bob Neyland, athletic director, said football coaches and other friends of Hickman throughout the country have been invited to serve on the scholarship committee.

Hickman, a former All-American guard at Tennessee and one-time Yale University football coach, died last Friday.

Unemployment Aid Reaches $26 Million

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee approved today an extra 26 million dollars to continue the government-financed unemployment compensation program for veterans and federal employees.

It again assailed the Eisenhower administration for reluctance to recognize the "serious unemployment situation" forced to do so.

The committee's action followed Thursday's House passage of a modified version of President Eisenhower's plan to extend by 50 per cent the period of unemployment benefits for all idle workers covered by state-operated programs. The bill would extend benefits for both Korean War veterans and federal employees. For these two groups, the federal government pays the costs.

Southern Democrats teamed with Republicans to vote down, 233-193, a more liberal proposal advanced by the House Democrats to leadership.

Predict Senate Approval
The White House said today the President was "gratified" by the House action and "hopes the Senate will act speedily."

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, conferring with the President this morning, predicted the Senate would accept the House bill. But Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) said he intended to "fight for a freer" spending Democratic plan.

The House bill would extend by 50 per cent the number of weeks that jobless workers can draw unemployment pay. This would range from an extra two weeks in some southern states to an extra 5 weeks in the larger industrial states.

The federal government would put up the additional funds but states would have to pay them back later.

The unemployment program for veterans and federal employees is wholly financed by the federal government.

Second Extra Allowance
The Appropriations Committee provided an extra 26 million dollars for this program in approving an urgent deficiency appropriation of $26,701,892.

It was the second extra allowance for these two unemployment programs during the current fiscal year.

It approved by House and Senate appears likely, the new allowances would bring to $78,000,000 the total unemployment funds appropriated so far for veterans and to $54,400,000 the sum for unemployed federal workers.

Under Thursday's House bill, only non-veteran jobless workers who have used up their regular compensation payments would be eligible for the supplemental benefits.

Thus, if the measure is approved by the Senate, those who used up their jobless payments after last June 30 and are still out of work would be entitled to the additional payments.

Ike and Dulles to Pay Visit to Canada

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles will pay an informal visit to Ottawa, Canada, on July 8-10.

They will be accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Dulles.

Announcing plans for the visit Friday, the White House said the invitation was extended by Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker.

During the visit Eisenhower will address a joint session of the Canadian Parliament.

This will be Eisenhower's second visit to Ottawa as president. He and the First Lady spent two days in the Canadian capital in November 1953.

President to Speak to Negro Group
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower will speak informally here May 12 at a luncheon meeting of the National Newspaper Publishers Assn., a Negro organization.

New Notes to Russia Reject Red Satellites

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Western Big Three dispatched new notes to Moscow today rejecting Russia's suggestion that Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia be included in pre-summit negotiations.

But they agreed reluctantly to handle the discussions on a one-by-one basis with the Soviet Union, rather than jointly.

The Western notes were in reply to a Soviet message last Thursday saying the "most expedient" method of conducting pre-summit discussions was through talks between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and the Western envoys one at a time. The West had urged the meetings be held jointly.

Russians insisted, however, that Poland and Czechoslovakia be included in any such joint sessions. The Soviet Union said this would preserve the principle of "parity" between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) powers and

Hard To Believe City Hall Site Was Once a Wood Yard

By Mary Anita Laseter

All trains going through Hope give the passenger a glimpse of a pretty building in the center of town which houses our offices of municipal government.

To look at this city square with its lovely structure and well-kept grounds, the stranger could hardly conceive of it once being the location of a wood yard or an industry like the Compress.

But many people in Hope know this to be true and fondly remember when a band stand was in the center of that same plot of ground. Many a good time was had at outdoor concerts and ice cream suppers there.

Where was the business of the city government conducted at that time? Above a drug store on West 2nd St., located where the Western Auto Store is today.

The City Hall was built in 1926 while R. A. Boyett (deceased) was mayor and the recorder was Fred Webb (deceased). On the building committee were: Richardson Ayres (now residing in Louisiana), Arch Moore (deceased), and Ralph Rounton (deceased).

The finance committee for the building were: O. A. Graves, W. Y. Foster (deceased), and R. M. LeGrone (deceased). Witt, Seibert, and Halsey of Texarkana were the architects and the contractors were Campbell and White.

It is noted with pride that no bond issue was needed to pay for this building. The financial needs were taken care of entirely by revenue from the Municipal Water and Light Plant.

Landscaping of the City Hall was the next problem and Dr. W. R. Anderson (deceased) pastor of the Presbyterian Church at that time, instigated a movement to beautify the grounds of the municipal building.

Many people were surprised that flowers, trees, shrubs, and grasses ever grew on this plot of land, for the soil used to fill in and level the ground had been excess dirt from the oil streets.

Thanks to many interested citizens the City Hall lawn was made into a place of beauty, though. This was especially true at the Christmas season when colored lights added splendor to the trees and shrubs.

The late Miss Lou Noble first suggested this Christmas decoration, and she often strung the lights personally while standing on a step ladder to reach to highest branches. However, since the trees have grown and Miss Noble is gone, the seasonal decoration is not on such a large scale anymore.

All of this has been about what a passenger can see from his comfortable seat on the train. If he could only glance inside the building, he would see a different kind of beauty.

Just last week redecoration of the offices was completed. They are now two beautiful shades of green, and four of the five offices are air conditioned. In the near future the fifth office will also receive the welcome benefits of modern air conditioning.

Through the years, this municipal building has housed not only civic agencies but also those of the county, state, and federal governments. It stands, not in memory to things past, but as a symbol of all branches of good government in the present day.

Manned Space Ships Planned Group Told

By JAME BAAR

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Manned space ships and rockets to Mars figure in plans of the administration's proposed new civilian space agency, the House Space Committee disclosed today.

The Budget Bureau tentatively estimated the program would cost about 100 million dollars the first year and 200 million dollars a year by 1963. Top space scientists have called for an annual outlay of anywhere from 500 million to a billion dollars.

The program includes:—Launching of instruments and camera-crammed rockets into space far beyond the moon and to nearby planets such as Mars—40 million miles away.

—Development of space ships capable of carrying men into space and safely returning to earth. Also manned orbiting satellites and space stations.

—Launching scores of satellites for space environment studies, weather reconnaissance, communications and astronomical observations; also satellites to the moon.

Development of a wide variety of huge new rockets. This includes development of a million-pound thrust rocket engine and new high-energy rocket motors.

The program included no timetable. But many of the projects would be spread over three to five years or more depending on how much money is put into them.

The proposed long-range program was released as Space Committee Chief Counsel George J. Feldman warned that civilian space exploration projects might be short-changed if some military and government officials get their way.

Feldman said "a lot of people in the government apparently don't appreciate that the United States is in a life and death struggle with Russia for space."

The committee has been considering President Eisenhower's proposed civilian space agency based on the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, NACA at present is a basic research arm of the Air Force.

Flood Damage Is Mounting In Arkansas

Additional rainfall, hail and electrical storms struck flooded Arkansas last night adding to troubled sections all over the State.

Heavy hail lashed Texarkana early this morning and the Shover Springs community may have weathered a tornado. Cecil Allen's barn was completely destroyed and several out houses in the area were blown down. Some 1,000 bales of hay in the barn were destroyed. Electricity was out in the area.

The Experiment station reported 70 of an inch of rain during the past 24-hour period. However, the heaviest rainfall apparently fell in the southern section of the county.

Nashville was flooded by about five inches of rain early Friday which resulted in an estimated $150,000 damage. At least 5 families were forced to evacuate their homes as backwaters from Mine Creek flooded a section of the city. The water flooded several business establishments.

Meanwhile, in the McKinney Bayou area near Garland City some 70,000 acres are under water as Guardsmen and volunteers continue to battle high water. Apparently the battle is being won as the levee continues to hold there. There was little rainfall in the area yesterday and the levee, although leaking in several places, continues to hold.

Flooding has caused over $3 million crop damage to that section, according to the Miller County agents.

Flood warnings on all rivers in this area have been issued. Red river will rise to a crest of 24 to 26 feet at Index sometime today and will crest at between 27 and 28 feet at Fulton today. Little River will crest at 28 feet at Hornito and from 27 to 28 feet at White cliffs sometime today.

Reportedly 80 Killed in Indonesia

SINGAPORE (UP)—Survivors' report said today Indonesian of Monday's air raid on Balikpapan rebel bombers set fire to a small port, perhaps killing 80 of its men.

The report increased the estimated toll from this week's insurgent air action to nearly 100 dead.

Chief Mate Frank D. Smith of the British tanker San Flaviano, burned and sunk during the raid, said a loyalist sloop in the harbor shared the fate of his ship.

Smith did not know the name of the warship, nor would he estimate the number of persons killed in the rebel attack. Another crewman of the tanker said, however, that the sloop carried about 100 men "and only 20 of them were taken off."

Two escort sloops built in Italy to Indonesia's order, the Pettimure and the Sultan Hasanudin, were due for delivery last year or early this year.

Earlier today, the loyalists said they can prove their charge that American "adventurers" are flying with the rebel air force.

An announcement published in Jakarta said Foreign Minister Subandrio is prepared to offer U.S. Ambassador Howard Jones a confidential report on "the participation of U.S. nationals in the rebellion."

The announcement hinted also that the insurgents are receiving financial aid from outside sources. The Antara (loyalist) news agency reported two new rebel raids today—a bombing which killed five persons and injured 23 aboard a Mecca-bound Moslem pilgrim ship in Kandar harbor, and a strafing attack on Ternate Island in which two persons were injured.

It had previously been reported that rebel bombers sank a British tanker and killed 12 of 26 persons aboard a Panamanian freighter in raids at other points.

On the ground battlefronts, Lt. Col. Rudy Pirngadie of the loyalist army said "mop-up" columns southward from the Padang area captured Maralabuh, 23 miles southeast of Atahan Padang.

SUNDAY AT THE SAENGER

Showing At The Dixie Drive-in

The mob is about to give Jerry Lewis "the works" in this scene from "Delicate Delinquent," showing today and Sunday at the Dixie Drive-in. The picture also stars Darren McGavin and Martha Hyer. Also on the same program are 3 color cartoons and 2 comedies.

with John Alden Knight

One evening last March, I was talking to Jimmy Albright in the club rooms of the Islamorada Fishing Club, down on Upper Matecumbe Key, Florida. Jimmy, for my money, is the top tarpon guide hereabouts. He is who finds and gaffs Jerry Coughlin's tarpon for him. Those two make a deadly combination.

As might be expected, Jimmy and I were talking fishing. Since March 1st there had been two — exactly two — good fishing days and here it was, the 18th. Since March 4th, we had been subjected to an almost constant barrage of cold winds from the north; cold winds, rain and cloudy skies.

"The moon changes on the 20th," I was saying when Jimmy interrupted.

"No matter what the moon does or does not, you can't get away from one inescapable fact — you won't get good fishing unless you get good weather. Wind from the south or southwest, clear skies, bright sun, steady breeze, and normal temperatures. Until then, you might as well keep the boat at the dock. The fish simply do not come in from deep water when a cold north wind is blowing."

Jimmy couldn't be more correct. Good fishing and good weather go hand in hand.

"As I was saying," I went on, "the moon changes on the 20th. Usually the new moon brings with it a change in the weather. Let us hope most devoutly that the rule will hold good this time."

Each morning, with anxious eyes, I scanned the weather map. There it was and there it stayed — an almost continuous cold area from northern Canada to south of the Florida Keys. Nothing to do but "cancel out" on fishing dates, gaze forlornly at small-craft warnings, and sit around camp, bored stiff.

However, we did have two good days on March 3rd and 4th. This time of year the tarpon are on their annual migration to the spawning beds. Off Flamingo, Lake and Man-O-War Flat, both a few miles off Flamingo, as our fishing grounds.

March 3rd was a bit windy and somewhat cloudy. My son, Dick, had stopped by the Keys on his way home from Mexico, so we shared Perry Davis' skiff and took turns. During the morning Solunar Period, which lasted for almost three hours, we hooked fourteen tarpon, landing five which, on fly rod, is a good average.

The next day we took two guests with us so we used two skiffs. Dick and Frank Baker went with Hal McGovern and Lynn Corley and I went with Perry Davis. Both of these excellent guides fish out of Ralie's Fishing Camp at Whale Harbor.

The trip to Conch Lake, about 25 miles, took about an hour and twenty minutes, the extra man slowing the boat's progress somewhat. Thus, we arrived at our destination shortly before the beginning of the major Solunar Period.

Outboard motor noise, for some reason, will cause tarpon to "roll" — come to the top and surface, much like a porpoise. As Perry coasted to a stop and shut off the motor, a huge tarpon, leader of a large school, rolled about 50 yards from the boat.

"There's your record-breaker, Mr. Knight," said Perry.

"G'wan," I replied, "that was a porpoise."

There were hundreds of king-size tarpon in Conch Lake that morning. There was little or no wind and visibility was good. All this being new to Lynn, I explained what we were doing and why. "These fish, so long as the feeding and activity period is in progress, will move slowly about through these shallows in search of food. Now and then the school will stop and circle the buoys, nudging the sides of the boat, causing them to broadcast their eggs among the lagoon grass that covers the bottom. Then the leader will move off once more and the school will follow."

"Tarpon are 'free spawners' — that is, they build no spawning bed. Instead, the eggs are broadcast to lose themselves in the grass, thereby insuring a higher rate of survival."

"The parade will last for about two hours, the end of the Solunar Period. Then the big fish simply vanish, moving out into deeper water. When that happens, you might as well go do something else. You won't see any more tarpon for a while. Here comes a whopper now — let's see if he'll take."

Carefully I cast the yellow and red streamer fly ahead of the big tarpon. He rolled up, opened a mouth the size of a bushel basket, and the fly vanished. Waiting until he turned, I applied all the pressure I dared to the tackle.

Although he had his lip for just this purpose, Lynn was not prepared for what happened. As soon as the big fish felt the hook, he jumped. There he hung in mid-air, black and silver. In the sunlight, shaking his head to rid himself of the offending fly. Sure enough, the fly sailed skywards and the tarpon fell back to the water with a crash that threw spray in all directions. I looked at Lynn. There he sat, eyes and mouth open wide, and the camera still in his hip.

I hooked four record-breakers that morning, all of them well over the 100-pound mark. Three managed to throw the hook and the fourth smashed the leader with his big tail as I attempted to reset the barb. With fish that size,

Turley Cools Off Athletics With 8-1 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Turley cooled off the upstart A's from Kansas City Friday with a four-hitter while his New York Yankee hunter rolled in an 8-1 victory despite Bob Cerv's eighth home run of the season.

Cerv, an ex-Yankee continued his tremendous spring surge with a second-inning homer off Turley on a 3-2 pitch.

After Cerv's blow ended Turley's 19-inning scoreless streak for 1958, Bullet Bob allowed only three more hits.

The Yankees put the crusher on loser Ralph Terry with three runs in the first inning, thanks to some sloppy fielding. Hank Bauer singled off Heck Lopez' knee at third and Norm Siebern was safe when Terry fumbled his bunt for an error. Tony Kubek, playing his first game of the year in place of the injured Mickey Mantle, bunted to Terry for a single that loaded the bases. Terry fielded the ball cleanly but nobody was on third base to take a throw.

Yogi Berra singled in two runs,

Nasser Bargaining With the Russians

MOSCOW (UP) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser interrupted three days of partying and sightseeing today and got down to hard bargaining with Soviet officials.

Nasser scheduled talks with Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other officials about possible Soviet aid to and cooperation with his new republic.

The Arab leader planned to drop serious business again this afternoon to attend a sports rally at Lenin Stadium and to go to the theater tonight.

Nasser stood with Khrushchev and President Kliment Y. Voroshilov Thursday to watch Russia's May Day parade. He thus became one of the few non-Communist leaders to take part in the occasion.

President Eisenhower was one of the others in 1945 when he visited Moscow as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

everything must go exactly right in order to land them.

Then, as predicted, the Solunar Period came to a close, and the fish disappeared. It happens with tarpon, just as it does with trout or bass or any other game fish. For two or three hours the fishing will be excellent, then the activity tapers off and the good fishing is over for a while.

A glance out of the window tells me that there is no hope for today — cold north wind and a cloudy sky. So here we sit, loafing around camp always hoping that kind fate will bring us another day when we can put the Solunar Period to work for us.

Tom Weber came down the steps, ran past the dead Hon-singer, the dead Partridge and on to his father.

Charlie Weber lay on his back. His eyes were open, but there was already a bloody froth on his lips. His mouth worked horribly as he tried to talk. "Tom," he choked out finally.

"I'm here," Weber said simply. "Son!" said Charlie Weber. The froth on his mouth burst, a shudder ran through Charlie Weber and he was dead. Weber remained on his knees for a long moment, then got to his feet. He was aware of movement not too far away, but he did not turn in that direction.

He continued to look down at his father. Finally his lips moved and a whispered word came from them. "Dad..."

Newman, the driver of the wagon, came up, his hands held above his shoulders. "I didn't have any part in this," he babbled. "I—I was hired to drive the wagon."

Weber turned to him. "Go! away," he said wearily.

Weber rode the black, Midnight, to the line of farmers that surrounded Lobo. He was recognized by a distance and men came to meet him, among them Kazumplik and Novak. They saw the blankness of his face, but they had to know. Kazumplik said, "Your father..."

"Dead," said Weber.

"A murmur ran up through the crowd. Weber without even pausing, continued to ride. Men gave way before him. He passed through the encircling line of farmers, rode up to Lobo.

They saw him coming from Lobo and they saw also the farmers behind him. Mike Denver stepped out from the Lobo ranch house into the ranchyard. He signaled to Sheriff Moon who was by the corals.

Moon hesitated, but when Denver gestured to him a second time he moved, but reluctantly. Denver looked over his shoulder. "Jeff," he called toward the house.

Alderton appeared in the doorway a rifle in his hand, looked past Denver and stopped. He brought the rifle up to his shoulder.

Behind Alderton, Lily Barker Alderton let out a scream. She rushed forward, struck at her husband with her clenched fist, just as Alderton pulled the trigger.

The bullet intended for Tom Weber was diverted enough to hit Mike Denver in the back.

The politician-schemer fell forward to his knees, then to the palms of his hands. He started to twist himself around. He fell to a sitting position and with the blood welling out of his back, found the face of Jeff Barker standing in the open doorway.

"You!" he said thickly. "You"

GOD

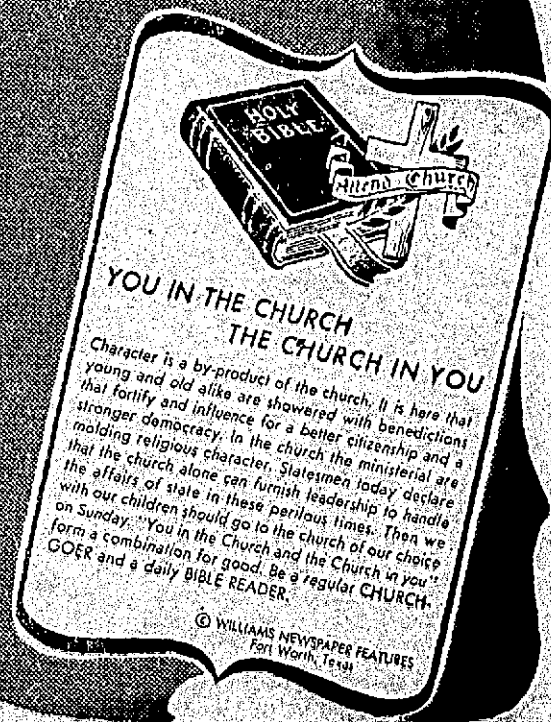

A CONTRACT

A contract is a promise... a compact... an agreement between two or more persons. It simply binds the contracting parties to abide by the conditions set forth therein. It could be a marriage contract, or a business contract. It may be a contract with your church and your God. A contract is a serious piece of business. Do you fulfill the terms of the contracts you make? You promised to be true to your life partner until death. You signed to discharge your financial obligations on a certain date. You contracted to be a faithful member of your church... to attend regularly and support its work. Are you doing that? Do you honor your contract...

your word? The integrity of your own soul determines the value of all the contracts you make. They are as good as you or as bad as you.

Church attendance will help you prove yourself worthy of the confidence of both man and God. Attend every worship service.
